What you can expect from this module

The move to hybrid working has vastly exacerbated musculoskeletal problems resulting not only in health issues for employees, but loss of productivity and risk issues for employers to manage.

With MSK conditions accounting for more than a quarter of Bupa member claims, it is vital organisations recognise their role in helping to prevent the potential impacts that hybrid working can present and minimise further risks.

By understanding the key MSK challenges employers can be better equipped to support their people to access the right care and avoid the risks of unnecessary surgery that often leads to long-term sickness and work absences.

This module will be delivered as a 90-minute live session, hosted by a Bupa clinician and your Bupa account manager who will share:

- Insight into MSK conditions and their impact on the workforce
- Expertise on how to identify and support employees facing MSK challenges
- An understanding in how to minimise further risks
- How MSK conditions can impact the rest of your health
- The legal duty of care that employers have to ensure the safety, health and welfare of employees
- Education, tools, and resources to support colleagues with MSK condition

34% of GP referrals to a surgeon are more appropriately guided to an MSK Physician or a Physiotherapist

One in three employees with long-term conditions have not discussed it with their employer

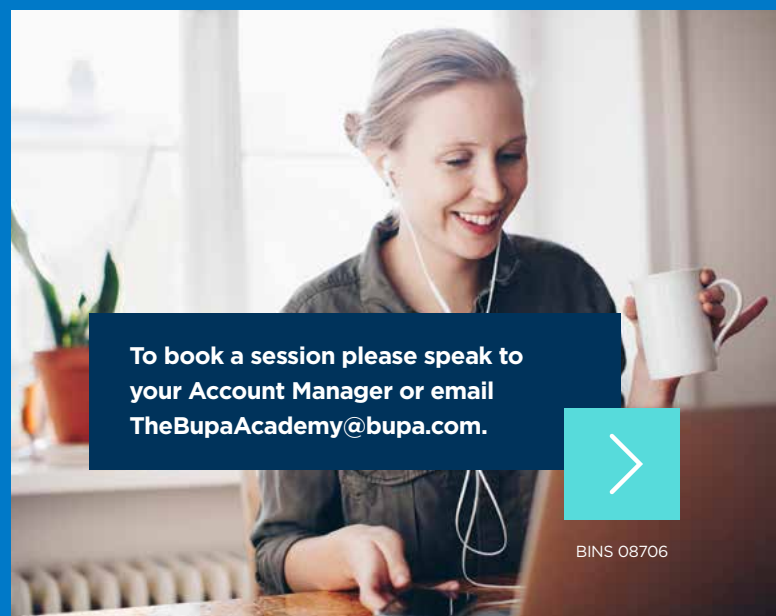

Those with an MSK condition in work, are more likely to retire early

Over half of people (53%) surveyed with MSK conditions say their symptoms have a negative impact on work
